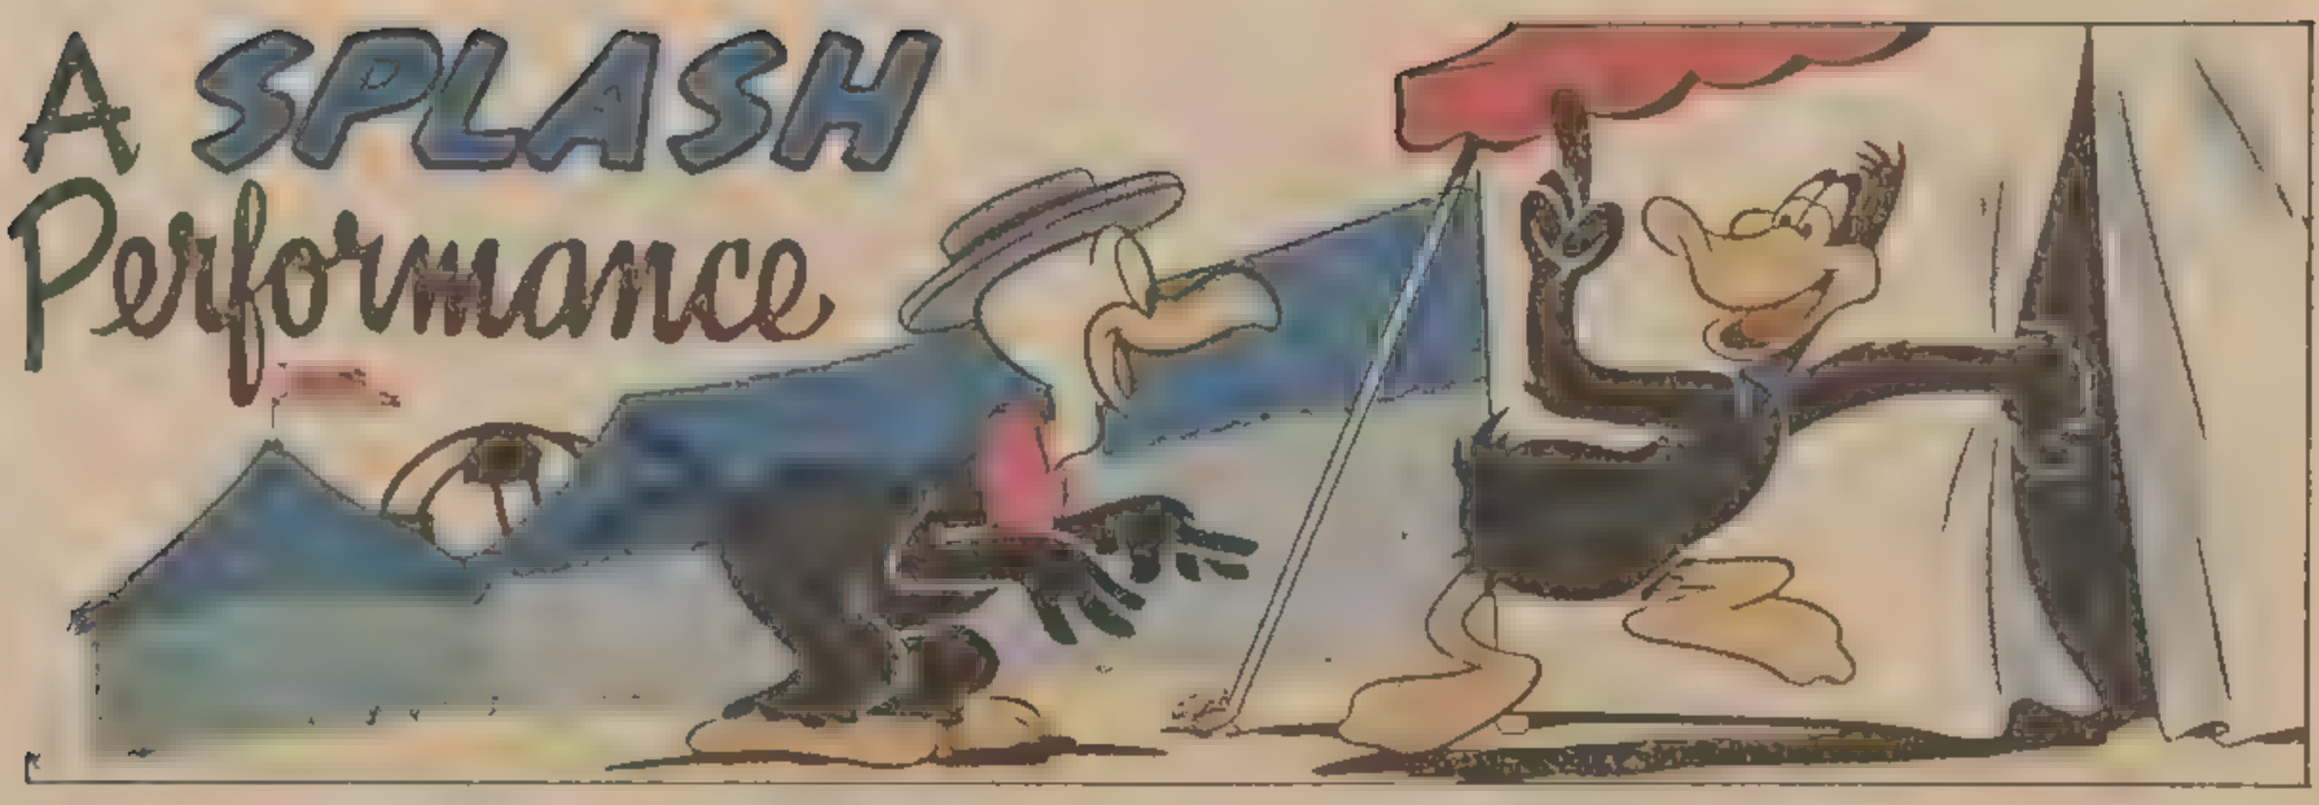
A SPLASH Performance



"Tum, ta-dum, dum-dum," Daffy Duck hummed merrily as he strolled past Beaky Buzzard's house one morning.

"Hey, where're you going so early?" Beaky called from his front porch.

"Why, haven't you heard?" Daffy replied with a sly little chuckle. "I'm going into show business."

"Ha, ha," Beaky chortled. "That's the best one I've heard all week. You couldn't possibly get a job in show business!"

"Go ahead, jest if you must," said Daffy. "A truly talented performer soon hardens himself to public scorn!"

Beaky hurried after Daffy. "Hey, Daffy," he called, "how about inviting your friends to come and watch you?"

Daffy stopped walking. "Well, uh," he said hesitantly, "the fact is . . ."

"Ha!" Beaky interrupted triumphantly. "Just as I thought. You don't have a job in show business at all!"

"Oh, yes I do," Daffy insisted stoutly. "I'm one of the main attractions down at the Pier Amusement Park. That's show business in anybody's language."

Beaky's face lit up with interest. "Why didn't you say so, chum? Tell me, was it very hard to get the job?"

"Well," Daffy said as they continued to walk towards the amusement park again, "I had to have plenty of pull, and I worked all day yesterday learning the ropes. But now that I have the job," he added boastfully, "the show couldn't go on without me."

Beaky glanced at Daffy with new respect. "If you're that important, maybe you could get me a job there, too, huh?"

Daffy shook his head doubtfully but said he'd find out. Some time later, they strode up the narrow passageway at the rear of a long line of side show tents at the park.

"That is it," Daffy announced, stopping at the back of one particular tent. "Wait right here for me." He popped inside the tent and returned a few minutes later. "You're in luck," he grinned slyly. "The star of the show has quit and you can take his place."

Beaky could scarcely believe his ears. "M-me...a...a star?" he stammered. "T-that's wonderful, Daffy! But...but, do you think I'll be a success?"

"Oh, you'll make a big splash, all right," Daffy chuckled to himself. "But if you walk off the job like the last performer did, you won't get paid one red cent!"

"I won't quit the job!" Beaky promised.

Before Beaky had a chance to change his mind, Daffy hustled him through the tent, up a long ladder and pushed him inside a small cage. Then he slammed and locked the door.

"Hey, what is this?" Beaky squawked in alarm. Below him, a group of people were gathering. At a signal from Daffy, each of them picked up a handful of baseballs from a counter and began to throw at a target directly under Beaky's cage. Beaky glanced down and let out another squawk of surprise, for, directly under him, was a large tank of water.

"Now I recognize this place!" Beaky cried. "I've been here before, myself. When you hit the bull's-eye with a baseball, the bottom of the cage opens and the poor fellow inside falls into the tank of water! Egad! This time, I'm the poor fellow!"

"And I'm the fellow who pulls the rope and opens the trap door," Daffy giggled from below. "Get ready to make a splash performance, Beaky. The show must go on!"

The Incredibly Beautiful
BUTTERFLY MAIDENS

Original Oil Paintings Pressed with Real Butterflies
Reproduced in Stunning Natural Color

ALL 4 ONLY $1

Yes, the butterflies you see in these marvelous portraits are real butterflies! To the fresh, sweet charm of each dainty maiden, noted palettist Hartnett, has added the dramatic beauty of real butterflies, the same ones that dot a summer field with bursts of movement and color. The results are rhapsodic portraits vibrating with a charm and innocence that you seem to be seeing as if in a dream. The Butterfly Maidens are so absolutely appealing that they are exactly that final touch you are looking for to give a decorator feel to any setting. Unfortunately, it is literally impossible to recapture the liquid clear colors of the figures, the vibrancy of the butterflies from the small illustrations here, but can't you just imagine the beauty and appeal they bring to any room when once you see them for real?
